The History of Hunter Education

Hunter education in the United States originated because of concerns about increasing numbers of hunting incidents in the years immediately following World War II. Returning soldiers found that battlefield skills did not translate into safe hunting skills. In response, a number of states began offering voluntary hunter education workshops in the late 1940s and early 1950s. New York became the first state to require mandatory hunter education beginning in 1949. With the 1972 passage of the Dingell-Hart amendment to the 1937 Federal Aid in Wildlife Restoration Act (commonly called the Pittman-Robertson Act); states became eligible to receive funding for hunter education. Within just a few years all 50 states developed mandatory hunter education programs. Today, hunting accidents are at their lowest point since documentation began.

In 1979, the Idaho Hunter Education Law was passed. Hunter education became mandatory for all first-time hunters born on or after January 1, 1975. In 1993, the law was amended to include a mandatory course for bowhunters.

Legal Establishment of Hunter Education in Idaho

The legislative intent of the Idaho Hunter Education Act is found in the Idaho Code, Chapter 4, Title 36, Sections 36-4I1 and 36-4I2. This law sets the requirements for hunter and bowhunter education as well as sets fees for courses and stipulates use of volunteer instructors. Appendix A

OUR MISSION:

The mission of the Idaho Hunter Education Program is to educate Idaho hunters about safe hunting practices, game management, and hunting regulations and to develop responsible, ethical sportsman.

OUR GOALS:

Reduced hunting accidents statewide through course graduates that practice safe hunting and firearm handling skills.

- Increase hunting participation of hunter education graduates.
- Graduate students that are knowledgeable about hunting laws and ethics, and wildlife conservation, identification and management.

PROGRAM FUNDING:

Funding for Idaho's Hunter Education programs are provided by class fees and excise taxes on sporting arms, ammunition, archery equipment and handguns. Excise tax funds are distributed to state hunter education programs through the US Fish and Wildlife Service under the Wildlife Restoration Act, also known as Pittman-Robertson. Funds are allocated based on state hunting license sales and state population. To receive funds, Idaho must match 25% of the money with donations and volunteer service hours. The time you and your fellow volunteers donate plays a vital role in ensuring that Idaho Hunter Education receives its Federal share.

Instructor Policy & Procedure Manual

This Policy and Procedure Manual has been developed to help you in your role as a volunteer instructor. The policies and procedures of the Hunter Education Program are established to protect students and instructors alike. They provide instructors with classroom protocol and help to insure the overall success of the program. Instructors who follow the established curriculum and policies and procedures are provided liability protection pursuant to the Idaho Tort Claims Act (Idaho Code Sections 6-901 through 6-929) when acting in the capacity of a Hunter Education Program instructor. State and Federal policies Fish & Game operates under are located in Appendix B.

In addition, the Idaho Hunter Education Instructor Guide will help you develop a uniform course of instruction in safety, ethics and conservation. These publications are guides for instructors to help ensure that students across the state receive similar training and information. In addition, a uniform course meets the criteria established by the International Hunter Education Association-USA and National Bowhunter Education Foundation. This allows for hunter and bowhunter education certification in one state to be accepted by other states. Maintaining this reciprocity is important for hunters across the country.

Becoming an Instructor

Instructors in this program are members of a select group of hunters who have chosen to share their skills and knowledge by instructing new hunters. Becoming an instructor requires time and dedication. It also requires the ability to uphold high standards and present a professional demeanor at all times.

Junior Instructor Program

The Junior Instructor Program is designed for youth between the ages of 12 and 17 who are interested in being involved in Hunter Education. Often, older children of active instructors participate in this program. It provides the necessary training and experience so junior instructors can go on to become adult instructors upon turning 18 years of age and after the appropriate background checks. Junior Instructor applicants must complete the following requirements:

1. Be between the ages of 12 and 17 and of good moral character.

JUNIOR INSTRUCTOR RESPONSIBILITIES

Like adult instructors, Junior Instructors have responsibilities. These include assisting with at least one course per year. Junior instructors can assist with a variety of duties including class registration, running the computer system, assisting with firearm demonstrations, or teaching portions of the course. A Junior Instructor must be supervised at all times by a certified instructor. Junior instructors must be at least 16 years of age to assist students with handling live firearms. Junior instructors under 16 can teach, observe and point out safety concerns.

INSTRUCTOR CONDUCT

As a volunteer for the Idaho Department of Fish and Game, you are a representative of Fish & Game and are expected to conduct yourself in a professional manner at all times. We must be careful to confine our activities and teaching to the purpose of the program and to the improvement of hunter safety and ethics. While you are not expected to agree with every management decision made by Fish & Game, you should not use your class as a place to air your personal views. Likewise, as an instructor you are expected to obey wildlife laws and model ethical hunter behavior. The following are grounds for termination as an instructor:

- Failure to comply with established policies and procedures.
- Failure to provide adequate instruction.
- Failure to promptly return supplies, equipment or reports.
- Use of alcohol or drugs before and/or during a class.
- Use of profanity.
- Unprofessional appearance or inappropriate dress.

HUNTER'S CODE OF CONDUCT

- I will obey the rules for safe handling of firearm or bow and insist that those hunting with me do the same.

- I will understand and obey all hunting rules and regulations and will insist that those hunting with me do the same.
- I will always ask permission to hunt on private land and will conduct myself in a manner that will give landowners and the public a positive impression of hunters.
- I will remember that the future of hunting depends on both hunters and non-hunters, and I will always strive to create a positive image of hunters.
- I will support conservation programs that benefit all wildlife at the local, state and national levels.
- I will conduct myself in a manner that will not be considered detrimental to the hunting heritage.
- I will set a good example for new hunters by actively passing on the skills and knowledge necessary to be a safe, ethical and responsible hunter.

INSTRUCTOR CLOTHING

To facilitate a spirit of camaraderie among Hunter Education Instructors, Fish & Game will provide all active instructors with an instructor vest and cap. The vests are a great way to display your program patches.

Instructors are eligible for a vest and cap after certifying in the program and teaching at least one course after certification. Upon eligibility, contact your regional Volunteer Services Coordinator.

MAINTAINING ACTIVE INSTRUCTOR STATUS

In order to maintain active instructor status for the program you are certified to teach, you must instruct a minimum of one course each year and attend required trainings. This may be as a lead, assistant or guest instructor. If unforeseen circumstances make it impossible for you to meet this requirement or you live in a small community where the need for courses is limited, please discuss this with your Volunteer Services Coordinator. It is possible that you can assist with other important hunter education needs to remain active as an instructor. Instructors who are unable to meet the minimum requirement will be placed on an inactive list. Inactive instructors are unable to order program materials until they become active again. Contact your Volunteer Services Coordinator to re-activate your instructor status. If circumstances require that you take a sabbatical from the program, please notify your Volunteer Services Coordinator so they are aware of your situation. Instructors who remain inactive for two years or more will be required to attend a new instructor training or instructor workshop before being placed back on active status. A background check will also be required.

INSTRUCTOR REINSTATEMENT

Instructors are human and people make mistakes. Depending on the situation, it is possible to be reinstated as an active instructor. If an instructor has been suspended pending the investigation of an allegation and is subsequently cleared of the allegation, the instructor will be reinstated. If an instructor is not cleared of the allegation, circumstances may require that the instructor successfully pass an Idaho State Police Criminal History Records check.

Note: Any instructor disqualified for cause will not be reinstated.

Hunter Education Range Officer

Any instructor who wishes to offer an optional live fire exercise must complete HERO certification or NRA Range Safety Officer Course.

Fish and Game can arrange the HERO course. This course is a home-study course that will provide instructors with the basic knowledge to safely organize, conduct and supervise shooting range operations. The course covers general safety procedures, how to give safety briefings, range rules, approved shooting commands, how to handle firearm malfunctions and emergency procedures.

To certify as a HERO instructor, contact your regional Volunteer Services Coordinator to get your course materials and take the open book test. Instructors must pass this test with an 80% or above to certify. Certified instructors will receive a distinctive HERO patch to wear on your instructor vest.

The Field Day is Required for Independent Study Courses

Conducting Your Class

STUDENT/INSTRUCTOR PROTOCOL

Never be alone with a student. Always be accompanied by multiple students, another instructor or parent when working with a student or administering the exam. Do not drive students home or to the field exercise.

At the beginning of the course, please set clear expectations that participants need to arrive on time. If necessary, ask parents to arrive 10 minutes before the class ends to pick up their child.

LATE PICK UP OF CHILDREN

- If a parent is late picking up their child, ask another adult to wait with you until the child is picked up.
- What if parents are at least 30 minutes late and you have a time conflict? Do not leave the child alone. Attempt to contact the parent. If needed, contact the Volunteer Services Coordinator. Lastly, contact the police department.
- If punctuality becomes an ongoing problem, first discuss with the parent, and if necessary, suggest they register for another course.

ACCESSIBILITY

Instructors are required to provide “reasonable” accommodations for persons with disabilities as set forth in the Americans with Disabilities Act. Therefore, it is important that at the beginning of the first class, instructors notify all students of the following:

“If you need special assistance or accommodations for this course, please let an instructor know before the end of today’s class. We will make every effort to accommodate your needs.”

Sometimes, students or parents are embarrassed to make special requests, so be sure that you make yourself available after the first class ends in case a student or parent would like to have a private conversation.

If you receive a request beyond what you can provide, such as the need for an interpreter, please notify your Volunteer Services Coordinator within 24 hours. Fish & Game policy on special accommodations such interpretation is stated on the registration page of the IDFG website. We require a minimum of 30 days advance notice for Fish & Game to arrange the requested accommodations. Individuals can connect with the Idaho Relay Service or TDD at 1-800-368-6185.

MAKE-UP CLASSES

Students are expected to attend all classes. Make-up classes can be offered, but only if the instructor is willing to hold such classes. Instructors are not required to hold make-up classes; it is the responsibility of students to attend all required classes. This should be made clear to students on the first night of class. However, students do get sick and emergencies happen. Providing alternatives to make up missed material is something instructors can do for students with extenuating circumstances. Such things include written or oral reports of missed class material, completing all review questions for a chapter, taking a quiz, etc. This is left to the discretion of the instructor. The field exercise cannot be made up with alternative methods. Instructors are encouraged to require students that will miss more than one class to enroll in another course that would better meet their needs.

Incentive Awards Program

Thank You!

Your volunteer time is the backbone of the Hunter Education Program. We have developed an incentive awards program to reward your efforts.

Should the award recipient wish to gift the license to another individual, the award recipient is responsible for making up the difference between the two amounts, if any. If a team is selected as the recipient of the award, only one Resident Lifetime Hunting License will be awarded to the team.

Certifying Your Students

The decision to certify a student is based on the following standards:

- A student must be at least 9 years old.
- Students must attend all classroom sessions or complete requirements set by the instructor in case of a missed class.
- Students must attend the field exercise.
- The student must pass the written final examination with a score of 80% or higher.
- The student must display responsible and safe behaviors during all aspects of the class, especially the field exercise.
- The student does not, in the opinion of the instructor, meet the course standards.
- The student repeatedly displays unsafe behaviors even after having been asked to stop by the instructor or other students.
- The student repeatedly disrupts the course even after having been asked to stop by the instructor or other students.
- The student directly points a firearm at themselves or another person during the field exercise.
- The student fails to attend all classes and/or field exercise.

Upon successful completion of the course requirements, students will receive their certification card. This is a big moment for many of your students. Celebrate your students' accomplishments with a formal presentation of certification cards. Remind your students (and their parents) to put their card in a safe place. Their certification number is required for them to purchase their first hunting license.

FAILING A STUDENT

Failing a student is a serious step. Instructors must document the reasons for a failure as well as discuss the decision with the student's parents. You must also notify your Volunteer Services Coordinator whenever you fail a student for reasons other than the written examination or attendance. Document the reasons for a failure. Students that fail a course will be required to re-enroll in a later course and pay the course fee.

Reasons for failure are outlined as follows:

- The student receives a final examination score of less than the required 80%.

RECORDS AND FORMS

Paperwork is an important responsibility of Hunter Education instructors. Typically, the lead instructor handles the class paperwork. It is essential that all paperwork be returned promptly to the Volunteer Services Coordinator within 10 business days. Delay in the return of paperwork can impact a student's ability to get a hunting license.

At the end of your class, you must close out the class in the Event Manager Program.

- Class Record Form (must be signed) by those volunteers not using Event Manager.
- Student Information Forms (for any walk-in students or change of information).
- Course fees paid by walk-in students. Checks should be made to IDFG (this includes anyone that is not pre-registered). Do not send cash .
