

Dworshak Elk Working Group

Amon Molsee- Outfitter representative

Owners and operators Amon and Barbara Molsee are second generation outfitters, born and raised in the outfitting environment. The Molsee family has lived in the area all their lives and the income generated from big game hunts allows them to raise their family in the rural outdoor setting. They live and outfit in the same area and offer a wide variety of big game hunts almost year round.

Andy Rasmussen- Outfitter representative

Andy was born and raised in Idaho and has been an avid hunter from a young age. As a teenager he fell in love with hound hunting while going hunting with his uncles and cousins. Getting married, having kids, and sharing his love of hunting brings him great joy and satisfaction. In 2008 when the opportunity came up to purchase an outfitting business in Orofino and share his love of hunting with more people, he jumped at the chance.

Kyle Maki- Representative for sportspersons groups

Kyle Maki is the North Idaho Field Representative for the Idaho Wildlife Federation. He is a lifelong outdoorsman who spends as much time as possible each year pursuing Idaho's diverse big game hunting opportunities. His young children are what drive him to work in sportsman advocacy to ensure they have the opportunity for outdoor activities to impact their lives like they have his.

Matt Gamble- PotlatchDeltic representative

Matt has been a resident of Idaho his entire life and pursued a career as a forester where he has the privilege of regularly working in the outdoors. When he is not involved with youth sports, he spends time with his family hunting, fishing and camping. As an employee for PotlatchDeltic and an avid outdoorsman, Matt is excited to be a part of this group where he can represent the things he enjoys most.

Cory Brown- Landowner representative

Cory is a 4th generation farmer and rancher and lifelong resident of Clearwater County in unit 10A. He is a proud father and grandfather. He is looking forward to representing farmers, ranchers and landowners in the discussions of elk management in the Fraser area to insure healthy, high genetic elk herds for our future generations.

Mike Reggear- Landowner representative

Mike co-owns an 1,875 acre Tree Farm in Clearwater County, Idaho. The Tree Farm includes a timber and wildlife management area of over 1,700 acres. His direct involvement over the years with differing stake holders in natural resources and private property issues has shown him the “privileges and pitfalls” associated with resource decisions and how they impact people and the environment. Whether it is fishing in Southeast Alaska or hunting elk and deer in Idaho, Mike’s lifetime goal is to instill his passion and appreciation for the outdoors with his family and friends.

Paul Hayduk- Representative for archery hunters

Paul started fishing and hunting at an early age following his grandfather's footsteps. Following retirement from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service after 31 years, he spends most of his time hunting, fishing, and enjoying many outdoor activities throughout Idaho. Although an avid fly fisherman, he really enjoys deer, elk and predator hunting as well as trapping. Paul is excited for the opportunity to work with fellow hunters and IDFG to enhance elk herds of the Clearwater Region.

Justin Haag- Representative for archery hunters

Justin has lived in Clearwater County his entire life and has hunted elk in the Dworshak zone every year since he was 12 (and tagged along way before then). He has been with his wife for over 5 years. They have a 4 year old daughter and a baby due in June. From early May until early November, they try to get out and camp as much as possible and they enjoy everything there is to do outside including riding ATV's and motorcycles as well as fishing and finding mushrooms.

Zach Bakker- Representative for muzzleloader hunters

Zach was born & raised in the Midwest. He spent his youth chasing deer, bear and turkeys as well as fishing many of the species associated with the great lakes region. While working in Alaska as a fishing guide he met his wife and relocated to her hometown, Lewiston, ID. He's spent the last 15 years chasing elk and deer all over the west. Recently he has rediscovered his passion for muzzleloader hunting and have been on many great hunts, and a few successful ones, over the last several years. The Dworshak zone holds a special place with Zach as it was his first exposure to western hunting. He's looking forward to working with this group to help establish healthy and sustainable elk populations for years to come.

George Brown- Representative for muzzleloader hunters

George has been an Idaho resident/hunter for 47 years. He moved here as teenager because I loved what Idaho outdoors had to offer. He and his wife Kim have raised their family here. He has a passion for elk hunting and enjoyed sharing and teaching it to their family. He looks forward to continuing this passion with his grandkids and future generations and would like to leave Idaho hunting for the better as part of his legacy.
